I don't know why you threw in there that killing yourself was an option. You don't have the balls to do anything like that. And you also would never move away from [REDACTED] So neither of those are actually options. So what the fuck was the point in the that? Eat shit.
You should consider outsourcing your parenting like you do your lack of an idea of suicide.

Did you seriously tell him you want to work things out and get along with me? That just doesn't make any sense after the nasty things you've been saying to me on text and email and voicemail.
I'm having trouble understanding what the fuck is going on. You obviously don't want the kind of arrangement that he wants. Neither do I. So what's the deal?

There are only two solutions I can think of. For me to move away, or kill myself. But I can't justify either one because Chris keeps saying that [REDACTED] needs me. And by the way, I don't care what you tell [REDACTED] he already knows everything anyway. That was a clever threat though, in other respects.
